AKWE:GO Program

The Akwe:Go Urban Aboriginal Childrens Program aims to improve the quality of life of urban children (ages 7-12 years) through the delivery of appropriate activities and services.

Traditional cultural teachings and values are the guiding principles through client-based programming and individualized one on one supports that encourage healthy lifestyle choices.

The program focus is on enhancing the skills, knowledge, attitudes and values that will demonstrate positive personal choices, and to help develop awareness of the consequences of negative behaviours and to build upon and foster their inherent ability to make healthy choices.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

Every child's needs in the program are identified by intake, needs, assessment, and a client action plan process. They are often addressed and based on one of the five program objectives.

Social Supports: Addressing self esteem issues, victimization issues and peer pressure

Children In Care: Increased access to culturally appropriate programming and services.

Healthy And Physical Development: Health impacts of poverty, diabetes and obesity.

Institutional Interventions: Schools suspension supports, direct access to computers and literacy initiatives.

FASD and/or Disabilities: Providing tutoring and mentoring, supervised physical activities and incorporating a parent support component.
